Sights and Sounds of Ring Mountain Preschool: I hear Teachers greeting children and parents in the morning. I see pink and white blossoms in the trees and green grass making a colorful backdrop for children at play in the yard. I hear the Starfish on their way to the playground, stopping at the brown wall and counting heads in Spanish. I hear the Garden room singing "Put your hands up" with Caroline and Lee. I see the Dolphins having Spanish with Susan, covering their eyes and laughing in delight as she tries to find their "ojos". I see the Rainforest eating lunch outside on a sunny day. I hear the Sea Lions proudly reciting a valentine poem for me. I see the pirate ship in the Cove room made out of big blocks and imagination. I hear laughter, conversations, the happy noise of children engaged in play, splashing sounds from the water table, squeals in the garden from children digging for worms. I see teachers congratulating children for using the potty! I hear the cries of a child who fell down and got hurt and the soothing tones of a teacher tending to the "boo boo". I see parents talking with teachers. I hear children calling "hi Laura" as I walk through their classrooms. I hear the soft sounds of sleeping children in the nap room. I hear story tapes in the Garden Room at Aftercare rest time. I see excited children running to greet parents at pick-up time. I see parents gathered in the yard, talking with each other and making plans for play dates. I hear laughter and stories of small daily miracles in the teacher's room.

Enjoy this beautiful spring weather!

Best Regards,

Laura
